The people pay the wages of the public employees, and they are entitled to their fair and honest work, which the money thus paid should command. It is the duty of those entrusted with the management of their affairs to see that such public service is forthcoming. The selection and retention of subordinates in government employ-ment should depend upon their ascer-tained fitness and the value of their work, and they should be neither ex-pected nor allowed to do questionable party service. The interests of the people will be better protected; the estimate of public labor and duty will be immensely improved; public em-ployment will be open to all who demonstrate their fitness to enter it; the unseemly scramble for place under the government, with the consequent im-portunity which embitters official life, will cease, and the public departments will not be filled with those who conceive it to be their first duty to aid the est return to the people.

I believe that the public temper is such that the voters of the land are nominated a full county ticket and lows:

On May 22, the sixteen men who were then alive, moved from our old winter but to a wall tent, which was pitched about a half a mile east of the hut. On June 6, while I was sunning myself by the side of the tent, I noticed Brainard and Long going toward the winter hut. In a few minutes after I heard Fredericks telling Henry to accompany him to the hut to help and bring up some cash: 61 % bid September 616 bid wood. These four were the only men
